International Strategies in Higher Education Conference 2014

Upgrade your Campus with Quality Internationalization

We are delighted to announce that Center for International Relations at Eszterházy Károly College of Eger, Hungary is to host the “International Strategies in Higher Education Conference 2014”, 3-5 June, 2014. The conference is to seek answers and solutions to new challenges in the global arena of higher education, with special regards to internationalization and quality work on the fields of mobility, institutional collaboration and partnership development. Hungary is at the crossroads of cultures and international movements, while EKC is a university college facilitating exchange of innovative ideas, now related to international relations, education, foreign language and intercultural trainings, too. Conference participants as well as authors of the correlated publications are to enjoy and utilize the best practices in those areas that are shared in diverse work formats.

The conference will focus on the following themes:

1. Joint and double degree programs – Identifying the right programs and partners
2. Differences or difficulties? – Accreditation of international programs in Hungary
3. Implementing intercultural elements and approaches in the classroom
4. Enhancing learning performance: foreign language teaching and language exam systems
5. Fundraising for internationalization in higher education
6. E-learning as a tool for internationalization
7. Effective international office management
8. International comparative studies on inclusive education

Submissions will be accepted for presentation at the conference. Abstracts and follow-up full articles of no more than 8000 words will be published in two books – one in English and one in Hungarian this fall.
